Cunningham Sports Cars 1951 – 1955 Text by Kane Rogers In 1951 the B.S. Cunningham Company of West Palm Beach, Florida caused a sensation in both American and European motoring circles when they announced that they would build an American sports car and race it at Le Mans. For 1967, Cadillac vehicles rode on four different wheelbases, and offered a total of 12 models in three series. The lowline Calais series had three models, the mid-range deVille series had four models, and the top of the line Fleetwood series offered five models, including the Eldorado. Shoulder insignia US Army units are marked by colorful patches. Modern armies are built on each soldier's pride in his own unit. A soldier with lukewarm feelings toward his country's armed forces has fierce pride in the outfit to which he himself is attached. Lincoln and Lincoln Continental have traditionally been Ford Motor Company's finest line of distinguished automobiles. Join us and live the Continental Life.
