

Download Competition In The 21st Century

Recidivism: a Commission fining policy that might not be hitting the mark. by Kevin Coates | Jul 5, 2016 | Cartels, Commentary, Fines. Summary The short version of this very long post is that the Commission's current policy of applying the concept of recidivism to the highest level parent that exercises decisive influence over the infringing ...FTC Announces Opening Session of Hearings on Competition and Consumer Protection in the 21st Century September 13-14 at Georgetown University Law Center (August 24, 2018) FTC Announces Hearings On Competition and Consumer Protection in the 21st Century (June 20, 2018) Business competition will change radically in the next century. Short-sighted companies will go out of business. Survivors will successfully transition from the so-called Information Age of this century to the Intelligence Age of the 21st Century. Summary Business competition will change radically in the next century. Short-sighted companies will go out of business. Survivors will successfully transition from the so-called Information Age of this century to the Intelligence Age of the 21st Century.